DAHLIAS

Dahlias are without doubt one of the finest flowers that can be grown in the garden. They come in bloom along the middle of the summer and last until a killing frost. They do not want rich ground but do require considerable cultivation and thorough watering once a week. If soil is made too rich, you will get a great overgrown bush with small flowers and not many of them.

PLANTING INSTRUCTIONS with each order.
The numbers at the left of the page are the averaged ratings of about forty growers compiled by Prof. J. B. S. Norton of Maryland University Agricultural College and gives the Amateur the most reliable guide in selecting varieties that they could have. Any variety that averages high must be good. Anything above 80 is a very good variety.

TUBERS sent out are guaranteed true to name to have a live eye and be in good growing condition. I cannot be held responsible, if tubers are allowed to dry out before planting. Any tubers proving not satisfactory will be replaced or money will be refunded upon return of tubers sent.

GLADIOLI

Gladioli properly planted can be made to bloom from early in July until freezing, if planted at intervals of a week to ten days from the time that the ground can be worked until the middle of July. They should be planted in rows about six inches apart in the rows or in beds six inches apart each way.

The numbers at the left of the column are the ratings given by Mr. Gersdorf, who is rated one of the foremost authorities in the world on glads. 100 is perfect on this scale.

The prices quoted are for one inch (1 in) bulbs sure to bloom the first year. These are from young bulbs the majority of which have never bloomed and will give better results in the end than the larger and older bulbs. Larger bulbs (No. 1) at increase of 50 per cent above listed prices. By buying the smaller bulbs you save considerably.

SIX of a kind at dozen rates.
